Contents

Acknowledgments 9
Preface to the 1998 Edition 11
References to the 1998 Preface 26
Preface 31
References to Preface 41

Chapter 1 Introduction 43
General Theory 45
The Marxist Model 45
Dialectic 47
Transition 52

Chapter 2 Specific Theory 54
Exchange United and Production Unites 56
Alliance and Exchange 56
Political Economy of the Minimal Segment 59
Religion, Property, and the "Higher Unity" 62
Relations of Production: Synthesis 66
Surplus and the Forces of Production 69
Forces of Production 70
1. Organization of Production 70
2. Technology 72
3. Surplus and the Contradiction between Forces and Relations of Production 75
Contradictions 77
Summary and Conclusion 78

Chapter 3 Environment and Technology 79
Map 1: The Hill Peoples of the Burma Frontier 80
Map 2: Mainland Southeast Asia, Vegetation 81
Map 3: Northern Indochina, Vegetation 82
Map 4: Burma, Vegetation 83
Map 5: Northern Indochina, Rainfall in January 84
Map 6: Northern Indochina, Rainfall in July 85
Map 7: Northern Indochina, Annual Rainfall 86
Map 8: Burma, Rainfall in January 87
Map 9: Burma, Rainfall in July 88
Map 10: Burma, Annual Rainfall 89
Map 11: Burma, Elevation 90
Vegetation 92
Techno-Economic Zones 96
Economics and Ecology: Leach's "Ecological Zones" 97
Technology: Processes of Production 101

Chapter 4 The Kachin 115
Local Organization 115
Lineage Structure, Property Form, "Religion" 116
Articulation of Alliance and Descent: Kinship Space 123
Gumsa Structure 127
Note on the Clan 137
Rank Classes 139
Slaves 143
Summary 146
Economic Flows in Gumsa Hierarchies 147
Expansion 151
Vertical Flows and Stabilization 152
Summary 157
Note on the "Gradient of Brideprice" 158
Conclusion 158

Chapter 5 Expansion and Contradiction 160
1. Structure 160
2. Social Reproduction 166
3. Reproduction of Contradictions and the Contradictions of Reproduction 173
Territorial Expansion—Kinship—Political Authority 173
Forces of Production/Relations of Production 174
A Note of Clarification on "Debt" 179
Debt and the Meaning of Rank Distinctions 180
The Hierarchy of Contradictions 190
The Hierarchy of Constraints 193
Gumlao Revolts 193
The Dumsa and the Mythology of Revolt 197
Summary 200

Chapter 6: The Short Cycle and the Long Cycle 202
Secondary Contradictions: Slaves (mayam) 204
The Short Cycle: Gumsa/Gumlao 205
Gumsa/Gumlao: Reproduction of the Short Cycle 207
The Long Cycle 210
Short Cycles, Long Cycles, and the Distribution of Kachin Political Systems 213
A Note on Linguistic Diversity and Theoretical Analysis 219
Political Systems 228
Summary 237

Chapter 7 Evolution and Devolution 238
Feudal vs. Asiatic Modes 239
1. Devolution 242
Topological Transformation 243
Structural Dominance of Horizontal Exchange 252
Expansion and Conflict in the Horizontal Exchange System 256
Gumsa/Gumlao 258
Further Devolution 259
Gumsa/Gumlao 263
Structural Inversion: The Sacred Founder 265
Headhunting, the Wa, End of the Road 267
The Wa 268
Summary 272
2. Evolution: The Asiatic State—Some Suggestions 273
The Evolution and Dominance of the Vertical Exchange Structure 274
Summary 294
Conclusion I: Evolution, Mystification, and Ideological Bias 295
Conclusion II: Residence and Evolution: Mystification or Materialism 299

Chapter 8 Conclusion 302
Implications of the Marxist Model 302
Synchrony and Diachrony 302
Transformational Models of Evolutionary Processes 306

Abbreviations 308
Bibliography 308
Appendix I: Religion as Economy and Economy as Religion 326
Notes to Appendix I 338
References to Appendix I 339
Appendix II: Generalized Change, Theocracy, and the Opium Trade 341
References to Appendix II 355